FAMOUS
DICK SMITH

WIZZARD

low cost personal computer

YEARS AHEAD

Yes! It's not 1970's technology like most other computers — the Dick Smith Wizzard's superb design was finalised just a few short months ago.

JUST PLUG IN THE BASIC CARTRIDGE

And the Dick Smith Wizzard becomes a powerful personal computer, ready to go to work for you! Complete with 17K RAM (more than most computers!) expandable externally to a massive 64K! As well, the Wizzard offers you up to 16 different user-programmable colours, with characters and character background all independently programmable. PLUS there's programmable sound — up to three notes simultaneously for complex chords! To help you understand the Wizzard computer, each BASIC cartridge includes, at no extra cost, a comprehensive manual especially written for the Wizzard by Jamieson Rowe, SMIREE, Australia's "father of personal computers."
